Excerpt from Number Stories of Long Ago

These are the stories that were really told in the crisp autumn evenings, the Story-Teller sitting by the fire that burned in the great fireplace in the cottage by the sea. These are the stories as he told them to the Tease and the rest of the circle of friends known as the Crowd. Sitting by the fire and listening to the stories, in the lights and shadows of the dancing flames they could see the forms of Ching and Lugal and all the rest with their curious dress of long ago.

Night after night he told these tales of the ages past, stories unlike the make-believes they had often heard, stories of what might really have happened when the world was young, stories that the Crowd said were "different" because they told of much that was new, much that was curious, and much that was interesting.

I found this little gem in a university library. After reading and falling in love with it, I began using it with tutoring students. This is a wonderful book to get reluctant 3 or 4 grade math-phobes interested in math.
